Fifth Street Bridge Construction

"Estimated" To Begin About Sept. 1

Bob Lee, Chamber President is in receipt of a letter from County Attorney Harry Johnston, in which, after reciting the procedure for validation and preparation of plans by State Road Department, he makes an "estimate which has no real basis except my experience with this type of project" that "construction would not begin before September 1.

Attorney Johnston points out that validation proceedings were planned to be instituted in Leon County by the Florida Development Commission, and an appeal must be made to the Supreme Court.

The bonds should be sold on February 1st, but that is subject to delays.

Then the plans and specifications must be made after a survey by the State Road Department, and then bids advertised and received. After a contract is signed the contractor is usually given 30 days in which to start.

Anyhow the bridge seems to have a plan for action, and President Bob Lee wants the public to know that the Chamber has been pushing for relief of the traffic bottlenecks through the City.

Bacom Point To BG

In New Dike Work

A $1,353,560 contract was awarded today by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in Jacksonville for raising a 7.5-mile section of the Herbert Hoover levee which surrounds Lake Okechobee.

The contract was won by the Hendry Corporation of Jacksonville, Fla., the lowest of five bidders on the work. Two other contracts valued at $3,079,988 are already underway on the levee.

Army Engineers said the contract awarded today to the Hendry firm is work along the southern shore of the lake between Belle Glade and Bacom Point. Some 3 million cubic yards of material will be taken from Lake Okechobee and piled on existing levees around the lake to raise them two to six feet in height. A portion of the borrow material will be used to construct three islands inside the lake area to give added wind-tide protection to the levees.

A 1700-foot strip of paving which serves as a recreation and picnic area in the vicinity of Torry Island will be replaced, but access to Torry Island will be maintained during the raising of the Hoover Dikes.

The successful bidder will have 180 calendar days to complete this portion of the work.

Work on the islands will be completed by the end of the year.

Talk On Two Berlins

Heard By Lions Club

Jack Bission, office manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Co. office, West Palm Beach, was guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Belle Glades Lions Club Wednesday at the western center.

Lion Carl Crawford introduced Mr. Bission who spoke and showed pictures of the "two Berlins." The pictures of West Berlin showed modern street buildings, heavy traffic and lots of people while on the East Berlin side the pictures showed desolation, very few people and the buildings still in ruins from the war.

The speaker also told a story about when he was in Germany in 1958-59 and he and two G. I. friends got permission to cross over to East Berlin. He related some interesting incidents and experiences about the trip.

The pictures were made by Bell Telephone Co.

Flaunting White House Friendship?

When you are catered to politically and Big Steel and other business trampled publicly by the Whitehouse, it sometimes leads to overstepping the bounds of propriety and becomes a warning to the public as to its own safety.

Right along with the newspaper strike and the longshoreman's strike, and in the face of a stoppage of rail movement in the east coast by FEC unions, comes a proposal that almost succeeded in Hialeah.

An ordinance was passed first reading and passed by the Council to "keep out professional strikebreakers" — making it unlawful to hire anyone in case of a strike, not a union member.

The Mayor vetoed the ordinance, it is reported.

Apparently, however, some have been reading about the "freedom" of America, and are not on testing it out.

A couple of cane cutters became angry with each other with the result that an exchange of blows caused the Sheriff's office to be asked in.

A deputy appeared, arrested the one against whom the complaint had been filed, and reportedly handcuffed his customer for transportation to "the Man."

His friends objected, to the point of taking the prisoner away from the officer who appealed for help.

Help came in the form of more deputies and Mr. Winston, Sheriff of the British subjects, and the prisoner was taken off to answer the charges.

Resting an officer in the discharge of his duty and mobbing him to the extent in this case, isn't healthy" in some localities, and particularly in the some country of these particular ones.

"It Can't Happen Here"

But it CAN, and HAS — the lack of national laws to prevent such, has caused the elimination of rail transportation from the east side of Lake Okechobee where more than 35,000 cars of farm products are moved out annually, and many thousands move in.

Atlantic Coast Line stations at Lake Harbor and Clewiston and the Seaboard at Indiantown and Okechobee will get some of the rail car movement from the Glades area.

There are Napier patches in Lake Harbor that were growing and doing well, Tuesday as they have been for fifteen years, and have rock roads appearing in their car movement on Wednesday at noon.

Local farmers, the U. S. Sugar Corporation, the Cooperative and Florida Sugar have bulldozers and draglines on the ground with ten wheelers hauling shell rock for roadways and fill. The Coast Line is hauling fill and road material in by the car and putting it in place.

Evans and Rogers have transferred cane loading from the FEC tracks to the Coastline at Lake Harbor.

U. S. Sugar is building a loading ramp and elevators for loading sugar, from Bryant.

The Cooperative is making ready a loading station where one of the field portable ramps will be moved, from which sugar will be loaded for Savannah.

Florida Sugar is re-loading loading space and equipment for loading raw sugar.

At noon Wednesday the Coast Line had already switched several cars of vegetables and placed empties in their place.

Switch engines and empties are standing by on available sidings to move into the Lake Harbor yards when needed.

Duda is loading vegetables at Clewiston.

The Glades meets an emergency, and meets it right now — they are attuned to such things, even though they don't like them.

The position is still open, as is the list of applicants.

Palm Beach Events At Celebrity Room Forecasts New Dance

In Palm Beach events at Frank J. Hale's Celebrity Room forecast a re-birth of jazz rhythm which should sweep the country if excitement and enthusiasm are any indication.

A new audience participation dance "The Celebrity," created and designed by Frank J. Hale, one of the truly all time greats in the field of ball room dancing, is slated to replace the Twist in the Southeast Florida area. Steps like the Charleston, Black Bottom, Twist and other favorites of the 20's and 30's are incorporated into the rhythmic jazz tempo. For many it will stimulate nostalgic memories and for members of the younger set a new craze will be born. "The Celebrity" promises to be one of the most "funny" in dances ever launched in this country, according to Mr. Hale, because almost everybody's favorite step is utilized. It will be featured in a series of Sunday night galas to be held in the Celebrity Room, adjoining the Playhouse in Palm Beach. Two orchestras, Ted Straeter and his Society Orchestra and John Barney's Dixieland Six, will provide continuous dance music throughout the week. Contests will be held and the events are being televised on local channels.

"Crusade For Christ"

He is editor of "Christ For The World Messenger," a monthly magazine, and publishes religious tracts.

As an evangelist and personal revivalist, his preaching has been heard by audiences up to 20,000 a night. During one 13 night campaign the evangelist spoke before audiences totaling 100,000.

Among his many treasured accolades is the tribute of a Florida sheriff, spoken following a revival series at Arcadia. "There hardly a person to be found in the saloons during the nights of the revival. If Dr. Daniels had carried on another week the saloons would have been entirely empty."

In addition to his Gospel message, Dr. Daniels has issued volumes of counsel, of aid to the troubled and afflicted, and guides to a happy marital life. Among the titles are: "How to be Happily Married," "Whom Should You Marry to be Happily Married?" "I Accuse Kinsey," (published with the aid of Billy Graham and Kathleen Norris) and "Why God Does Not Always Answer Your Prayers."

Lowell Leister, soloist-song leader to rite revival, also comes from Orlando, Florida. He has been in evangelistic work leading revival congregations across the Nation, for many years. He was heard over a network of radio stations, with his own daily hymn program, and also has produced and conducted his own weekly telecast. Mr. Leister is listed as one of the top-35 baritone soloists.

of the Nation. He has thrilled audiences up to 20,000 a night. He will be directing a grand revival choral choir and bringing "messages in melody" each evening.

Johnny Bos, the youthful orgment Organ."

Dr. H. H. Zachary is a Gospel Musician and a Ventriloquist of rare ability. He holds youngsters (and "olders") too — for many attend the meetings to see and hear him) spellbound with his magic and two "Gospel dummies."

One of the features of the revival will be the showing of a series of color movies depicting the Life of Christ. They are said to tell His story from birth through His miracles, trials, crucifixion and resurrection. "All who have seen these color movies declare them to be the greatest they have ever seen," the Rev. Daniels declared in announcing the week.

A new and different one of the series will be shown each night at 7:30 p. m., just prior to the beginning of the music program. The only exception will be Sunday night at which time the film will be shown at the close of the service.

All boys and girls and teenagers will be given a free airplane ride at the close of the revival program, for attendance at every service. They will get their tickets at the first service. There will be punched each night. They are invited to attend a special boys and girls meeting at 7:15 p. m. each night prior to the showing of the film. Dr. Daniels will conduct a service entitled "Talks With Teens." During these services he will discuss with all teenagers and young people, love, courtship and marriage. Many have declared this one of the best parts of the service.

A nursery is being set up at the First Baptist Church just one block from the tent site, to keep children (ages three through 13) for parents attending the revival. The nursery will be open at 7:30 each evening of the meeting.

The Mind ... Of Mules And Men

The reason a mule sometimes quits is not because he does not know "gee-up" but because he would rather not hear it. Perhaps he would rather graze in the pasture or bark at the sun.

The human mind sometimes manifests the same characteristics. It seeks to evade an issue because it does not coincide with its own individual desires. Such evasive thinking is not the reaction of mature, responsible adults, and while the eternal destiny of the soul is at stake some manifests indifference toward the teachings of God. What a tragedy!

What to do is obey better than sacrifice, and to harken better than the fat of Rams. (I Samuel 15:22) What mind have you? What of a mule or of a man? The Belle Glade Church of Christ hopes that you will cultivate the mind of Christ by studying, believing and practicing the teachings of the New Testament.

Intercessory Prayer Watch Sat. Night

If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. We encourage you to come and pray for the Evangelistic Crusade, that God will bless the efforts of the Glades area strengthen the churches, and win the unsaved to Christ.

The following ministers will lead in these prayer sessions:

The Use And Misuse Of Pesticides

Dr. Townsend — is a practicing scientist in the field of Agricultural Research, particularly with seeds, plants, disease control, fertilizer, cultivation practices and breeding that have a major affinity to the Glades.

His years of association with the Everglades Experiment Station following his professional education, led him into private Practice in his own field and laboratory.

This talk was delivered to Belle Glade Rotary Friday, January 11th and is of such immediate and important interest, we asked permission to offer it to our readers.

It will be presented in installments.

Although Miss Carson has emotion in her followers, she is related by competent persons in the fields of nutrition, medicine, public health, agriculture and conservation, the facts are not reaching the public. The skill of her writing and arguments are better known, and will generate considerable emotion in her followers.

leading to cancer and degenerative diseases. You can understand why people become emotional over these arguments. I would like to summarize the rebuttals that have been given by competent authorities.

There is no doubt that in some instances wild life has been harmed by the use of pesticides. Miss Carson cites many of these. Generally this has occurred through overdoing, accidental treatments, or ones where a calculated risk may have been taken. As an example, robins are very susceptible to DDT, and the use of the insecticide in controlling the elm bark beetle has undoubtedly killed robins in limited treatment areas. It should be noted, however, that the elms were protected from a disease transmitted by the beetles, and that the benefits derived from elms in residential areas is equally as important as the song of the robin. Fish have sometimes been killed in streams in forested areas that have been treated for the control of the spruce bud-worm. The broad picture is different from the total eradication of wildlife that she forces. To begin with, less than 5 percent of the land area is being treated with pesticides, and of the forested area, it is less than 1 percent. These treatments of agricultural areas are generally confined to pure stands of commercial crops, and ordinarily does not affect wild game, fish or birds. It has been pointed out that the use of land for sub-divisions, golf links, and highways destroys more breeding grounds for wild life than the use of pesticides.

The term "balance of nature" should not express a static equilibrium of natural species. It is rather a fluid situation in which some species progress at the expense of others. It might be compared to the inroduction of two cats into a roomful of mice. There soon would be fewer mice and more cats. Since men emerged from the caves, this has been his relationship to the environment. The human population was held in check by the forces of nature and wild animals until he learned to use fire and build shelters, and crude weapons, the history of civilization has been the story of man becoming dominant over other species, and continually upsetting the balance to one more favorable to his existence. Man's success in managing nature has brought about a ten-fold increase in his numbers in the last thousand years. When North America was discovered, the continent supported about a million Indians in a low state of civilization. The pro-rata share of land for each Indian was about 2,000 acres. Today, the same land area supports well over 200 million people in the highest level of physical culture in the world. The per capita share of land today is about 2.5 acres in the United States. This progress of American civilization has been at the expense of vast forested areas and has almost eliminated the buffalo the white man came to America.

The world-wide growth of the human population has reached explosive proportions. There are twice as many people living today, as there were fifty years ago. In the next forty years, population is expected to double again. In round numbers, these figures are about 1 and one-half billion in 1910, 3 billion today, and an expected 6 billion by the end of the century. This is upsetting the balance of nature on a grand scale, and unless we utilize every resource available, including pesticides, we will not be able to feed ourselves. Where as, we in the U. S. have 2.5 acres per capita now, the world as a whole has only 1.25, and it is expected to fall below 0.50 acres by A. D. 2000.

FAT IN THE SADDLE

BETTER GIVE HEED TO IKE'S WARNING

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's warning of disaster if federal government's expansion is not halted should be must reading for every American concerned with the well-being of his country.

UNCLE DAN from DOODLE says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where the Defense Department is getting more and more complaints from young men about being drafted for the armed forces. The officials is blaming this on the easy life folks is living nowadays, claims our young generation is spoiled.

Personal, I don't think human nature is no different now in this matter than it was 40 years ago. I recollect back during the first World War a fellow telling me he was in the Army for 3 years. He wanted to fight for his country, he was shore the Army would build him up good and stout, and they had come and got him.

From what I read in the papers, it looks like things is running about even on the plus and minus side with them Government agencies in Washington. This means 1963 is getting started with a slight improvement over last year.

For instant, the Pentagon has quit ordering soda crackers made to "special military specifications" for the armed forces. They has decided that the kind of soda crackers me and you eat is good enough for the boys in service. Last week they bought 2 million pounds of soda crackers regular style and saved $124,000 for the taxpayers.

And it was announced they come up with another wonderful idea in the Pentagon. Up to now, the fellows in the armed services has been using the same kind of laundry soap my old lady uses, but they been getting it in a special "wrapper" made to military specifications." It was decided to buy this soap in the regular wrapper and save the taxpayers another $232,246 a year.

But over on the minus side, the Pentagon is still buying a 10-cent soap "wrapper" to special order. A manufacturer in Chicago says he gets a pamphlet of specifications and requirements 16 pages long on this 10-cent soap dish. He figures it costs the taxpayers more to get out the pamphlet than the dish costs. I have wrote to my Congressman about this item, hope you will do likewise.

But the biggest minus sign we got for 1963 comes from the Civil Defense Department. The fellows just up and bought 70 million "survival biscuits" for fallout shelters at a cost of $8 million. These is special biscuits, they explains, in case of nuclear attack, and now we got $8 million worth of special biscuits and no fallout shelters to put 'em in. That's a heap of wasted dough, Mister Editor, if you'll pardon this oldtimer for a slight pun.

I see where one of them Washington column writers announce that the $100 million we poured to the United Nations to 35¢ per adult in the nation. We ain't going to get it back so I mailed my 3¢ cent to Washington this morning.

Yours truly,
 Uncle Dan

Agriculturally Speaking

by

JOHN CUSHEY

Associate County Agent
 Glades Area

Friday morning at 10:00 a. m. Palm Beach County was putting their best foot forward as the South Florida Fair and Exposition opens its gates for the 1963, edition. Four-H members, FFA members, as well as all types of industries from all parts of the County, will have their products on exhibit for all to see. The Livestock Show promises to be one of the best in several years with herds on exhibit from all parts of the State and several out of State show herds being entered. FFA members and 4-H Club members from all counties in the Southeastern part of the State will have their livestock, both beef and dairy, there to make up the best Youth Show ever held in the history of the fair. The vegetable exhibit, poultry and rabbit show, 4-H demonstrations and dress review will all go to make nine days of events equal to none ever before held. We, in the County Agents' Office, would like to invite you all to come and see what Palm Beach offers to the World.

Rain fell Monday morning and was welcomed by all of our vegetable growers and cattle men. Some of the vegetable growers behind in their harvest might have wished this rain would have fallen at a time that would not interfere with their harvest but was glad to get it anyway.

Fog, hard blowing rains, as well as heavy dews, all contribute to the growth and development of diseases that effect our trees around our homes and vegetables in the field. Home owners here in the Glades often wonder why they never get a crop of fruit from their mango trees. Well, the three items mentioned above may be the cause as the fungus disease, Anthracnose, develops and must have the free water from these conditions to spread. As we have plenty fog or heavy dews during the blooming time of our mango trees, very few fruit will develop unless we have a very rigid spray schedule. Zineb or Maneb at the rate of 1 and one-half pounds per 100 gallons of water will give very good control if applied during the time the bloom is developing and the fruit setting. The first application should be put on when the first panicles of bloom appear, followed by a second about 5 to 7 days later and a third application at about 7 days after the second. By this time most of the bloom should be open and some of the fruit should be about the size of a small pea. A fourth application should be applied at a 7 day interval. This application can be of the same material or you may substitute one of the copper compounds available. As a rule by this time the mango fruit and stems should be developed enough to offer some resistance and further spraying will be stopped. However, if you note fruit drop with black spots or black stems, then an application may be needed. This I can seem like a lot of trouble to get a crop of fruit but we think you will be well repaid if you work with a good crop of delicious fruit.

Too Late To Classify

By Russell Kay

I appreciate the fact that advertising pays for many of the splendid radio and television programs I enjoy. I know that were it not for the tremendous advertising investment of certain sponsors I would not have the pleasure of seeing World Series ball games in full color, and I understand the importance and value of commercial competition and free enterprise.

I am aware of the part that competitive advertising has played in expanding markets, reducing costs to the consumer and making this country a better place in which to live.

I have no quarrel with advertising. I believe in it and respect it for what it is and what it does.

I do, however, have a bone to pick with present-day advertising methods and practices. I strongly resent the hard sell program now being practiced whereby to the heart of many of the bright young men of Madison Avenue.

I recent having my intelligence tested every time I turn a radio or television knob. I object to the bad taste in much of today's advertising. I am sick of the announcers screaming, yelling, threatening, finger-pointing, warning, pleading, imploring and begging.

I am a move or less normal individual. I experience the same problems as most people. I have body odor, falling hair, dandruff, bad breath, indigestion, irregularity, heart burn, headaches, sniffles and a lot of other things on occasions. Experience and common sense have enabled me to live with such annoyances and I don't mind or worry over them. I just don't like being reminded over and over again that I am physically I am a total loss and a danger to society.

Kind of the products the announcers rave and tear their hair about are good, but none are as good as they claim and in spite of what nine out of 10 doctors says, or how many fancy cavities some kid had, or how fat this or that pain remedy may be, it all adds up to a lot of high pressure blarney and balance and when you get right down to it, I am inclined to feel that the best buy for any sane individual is "Brand X" I am not impressed with scientific demonstrations, or elaborate graphs or charts. They don't possess a checked item in my book.

Spirits drop, even in Florida, as Winter settles down to visit for a while. If your morale needs a boost, but taxes will not allow a new Evnirude, or pail-ley turban by Mr. John, then try one of these for cheer. You should have time for all three before Spring cleaning comes due.

On Board Noah's Ark. Bemelmans.
 Even without the vibrant paintings which illustrate it, this book is obviously the work of an artist. The leisurely yarn is strewn with Her. Amanda, the baby-sitting dog, an eccentric assortment of crewmen, and a melancholy Italian nobleman join him in an odyssey which takes them to variegated Mediterranean ports, where wine costs thirty-five cents a bottle and fireworks light the sky. Only the Great Dane and her ill-matched owners are fictional. The rest is just as it happened to the gifted Mr. Bemelmans, and his ancient, bargain boat.

Don't Go Away Mad, Haynes.
 This one sets the curve, wins the trophy, takes first prize — all for lack of other words adequate to describe it. Laurence Haynes is a master of wit and comic repartee in this latest novel, in which the "professor" wife writes a play and invades Broadway. As one critic puts it, "You won't go away mad, you'll go away, shrieking with laughter." Despite an improbable finale, a sure cure for winter doldrums, here.

On Ye Jigs and Joleps, Hudson.
 It is not worth for the facts that these pert observations have mellowed in a trunk for some years, and the author was an epileptic twelve-year-old from a Quaker boarding school when she wrote them down, the book would be banned by sectarians from here to Boston. Who else could speak so boldly on Baptist singing drowning out Episcopal prayers, and Presbyterian prostration, without repercussions? Her concepts of the sacraments, church etiquette, personal appearance, and Corinthian juleps may horrify the elders, but will probably have them rolling in the aisles.
